SOUTH PACIFIC STOCK EXCHANGE LAUNCH NSX ELECTRONIC TRADING PLATFORM

On July 1st, 2010 NSX and NASDAQ OMX announced the launch of the South Pacific Stock exchange (SPSE).

In 2009 the NSX began working with the SPSE to allow them access to their electronic trading system (NETS), providing a platform for the SPSE to diversify and move from a call market to an e-market.

Chairman and CEO of the NSX, Michael Cox said he was pleased to assist the SPSE in its future developments and that the NSX will continue its support to "ensure that the switch from an open out-cry system to electronic trading is smooth and problem free."

CEO Jinita Prasad also said that she felt the advancement in technology would not only simplify the daily work activities but also increase the company's capacity and improve future growth prospects.
